Location

Location near major metropolitan areas is critical in attracting top notch staff, providing access to young adult specific recovery and activities, and offering proximity to top education institutions.

Woodland Hills, California, the location of our first campus, is such a place. An upscale community, only 15 miles from the Pacific Ocean in Southern California, provides access to a virtually unlimited number of qualified professionals, including academic and clinical staff. Activities are numerous and varied and include cultural and recreational opportunities.

Most importantly, the Southern California area presents one of the most exciting young adult recovery communities in the world. Coming out of wilderness or primary treatment settings, this is the ideal location for a newly sober young adult to get connected.

"Being located where they are, they provided us access to some of the most exciting young adult experiences. The kind of staff they were able to get also made a huge difference in my personal success. "
